DR. M. N. WALDRIP NO PUSSYFOOTER

Comes Out Strong Against Violators of Tennessee's Liquor Statutes

Nashville, Tenn.—(Special).—Chief among those heading the large committee in charge of bringing the great Southern Christian Citizenship Conference to Nashville is Dr. Marion N. Waldrip, pastor of the McKendree Methodist church of Nashville. Dr. Waldrip is no pussy-footer. He believes in coming out strong on whatever side of every question he takes a stand and he hits and hits hard straight from the shoulder.

Recently he brought down the wrath of the criminal court judge of Davidson county upon his head by an utterance delivered at the mass meeting of prohibition workers in their celebration of Nation-wide Dry Day, January 16. Prior to Dr. Waldrip's remarks, Mayor William Gupton, another strong churchman and advocate of law-enforcement, had made an address at the State capitol, charging that the criminal court was not doing its full duty in enforcing the liquor laws and was failing in its work to convict those captured by the city police of Nashville in violation of the prohibition laws.

Dr. Waldrip startled the city by declaring that if the mayor's remarks were true, and he had no cause to doubt their veracity, the judge of the criminal court should be flayed alive and his skin nailed to the front door of a former saloon, now closed. This made the people of Nashville "sit up and take notice" of this new champion of the right and of good government through law and order, and brought him into favor with the better element of Nashville's citizenship.

A few days later, the criminal court judge endeavored to answer Dr. Waldrip and the mayor by sarcasm and ridicule. At the present, neither Dr. Waldrip nor Mayor Gupton have withdrawn their charges and both have declared that they stand firmly by them as originally made.

Dr. Waldrip is a sample of the strong men of character in Nashville and throughout Tennessee who are in charge of the Southern Christian Citizenship Conference, which meets here March 7-12.

Suspended Newspapers

Until within recent years newspapers never quit their just passed on from one owner to another. But now publishers fail in business, just like other business men. Publishing has become a matter of first importance in the nation, and likewise its hazards have increased. The time has passed when you can take a dull boy and "make an editor out of him," as the poet Will Carleton put it. Twenty-five hundred newspapers have suspended publication since July, 1918, but still the Postoffice Department cries savagely for higher rates for second class mail matter.

It would be a pleasure to report that there was a prospect that the government would limit the size of some of the big city papers. The excess fat that cannot be classified as "news" in Sunday editions comes enough white print paper to provide thousands of small weeklies and dailies. But the government is not likely to intercede, and meanwhile the big publishers with their sinews on the white print paper supply are the big fish in the pond whose greediness has jumped the price of print-paper out of sight. Evidently the bigger the publishers the less is their worry about the white print paper condition.—Ex.

Advertising the Only Remedy

The inroads the mail order houses have made upon business that ought to be enjoyed by the local merchants the past twenty years is appalling. Every dollar that leaves a community makes that community poorer and takes from circulation money from the legitimate channels of trade in the section from which it is sent. This is a patent fact.

In analyzing the conditions which brought about this cause it will be found that merchants, especially in some of the smaller towns, are largely responsible for this exodus of cash and the filling of the coffers of the mail order magnates. The executives of the big mail order houses learned well many years ago the value of advertising. They spent thousands of dollars annually in reaching the people. They flooded the country with attractively printed catalogues. These catalogues are embellished with illustrations; give a comprehensive statement of each item of merchandise and the price is usually featured. The average individual who receives the voluminous "volume" reads it from cover to cover. The whole family reads it. They begin to figure what they want. In an appealing way every item is presented in a most attractive style. The attention of the prospective buyer is focused on a given article. This same individual is reading the daily papers, in many instances, and his home paper every week. He searches the columns and finds goods he wants not advertised in these journals. He takes it for granted the home merchant either does not carry it or does not care to "go after business." The home merchant may have the very item he orders from the mail order house, but the customer does not know it. The result is the mail order house gets the business.

To fight the devil, someone has said you must fight the Satanic majesty with fire. To fight the mail order house successfully, you must use their weapon in securing trade—Publicity.

The merchants must use every legitimate method of advertising and especially the newspapers, for they are the best medium to economically reach the buying public. They must carry standard merchandise and be satisfied with a legitimate profit. They must give as much thought to their advertising as they do any other branch of their business. Even in the smaller towns the merchants are waking up to these facts. The average country weekly, if worthy of patronage, is nowadays filled with advertising.

We are living in a period of high prices. Of all times this is the crucial period in the business life of the little merchant. The wholesaler and the jobber must co-operate with the merchant. The merchant and the newspaper must co-operate. There is a mutual ground all must cover. Systematic and PERSISTENT advertising will hit the spot and do the work. It is the only thing that will turn trade from the mail order houses to the cities and towns. The cotton States Merchants' Association, whose headquarters are in Memphis, has caught vision and that organization has put on foot a plan to co-operate with the merchant in the smaller towns of the south by giving them the advantage of expert ad writers to prepare copy for a series of advertising for their home paper and has conceived a plan, if carried out, which will build up the trade of this great section of the south by holding all business that should be had by the local merchants. Advertising is a power as magisterial as the needle to the compass, and if used judiciously will draw people to the stores and shops in each given community. After a customer reaches your store, then advertising has served its function. It is then up to the merchant to offer such inducements, extend such courtesies, and make it mutually profitable for the customer to trade with him in such a manner as to make of him a friend and booster.

In practically every instance the home merchant can compete with the mail order house and save postage and freight to the purchaser, but if the home merchant does not advertise and inform the public what he has to offer and at what price, the mail order house will advertise and get the business.

Put advertising to the test and the marvelous results will astonish you. Go after the business; it's yours if you hustle; the other fellow's if you do not make the effort.—Lauderdale County Enterprise.

Little Maids in the "Moon Door" Symbol of the Hope of New China

Ginling College, at Nanking, is Girls' School in Five Provinces With Population of 111,000,000—Interchurch World Movement to Aid Institution.

The way to all things at Ginling lies through the moon door. And through the moon door on the way to wisdom pass and repass, every day, the 70 Chinese maidens of the "gung-gwan."

The moon door at Ginling is round, as the full moon, whence it has its name. And the Chinese maiden, as she steps over its high sill, may spread wide her arms and still not touch its rim with the tips of her fingers.

Sometimes across the court yard is another moon door, and beyond it, like a smaller concentric circle, still another, leading on through that Chinese puzzle of a house, the "gung-gwan" or official residence at Nanking, China, which is now the home of Ginling College for Chinese girls—one of the three women's colleges in all China.

The moon door is but a single feature of the old place. Once inside the high stone walls that enclose it one is lost in a maze of courts and galleries and covered passages and isolated rooms.

The whole is China, old China and new. The moon doors and the architecture as a whole lend the dignity and the greatness of old China. But the laboratories and dormitories, libraries and studies made from the old rooms of state and ceremony are modern; just as the force of America is behind it all, represented by the five American missionary organizations and the American Smith College which maintain Ginling, is modern.

One pushes ajar the halves of a moon door, latticed over paper in plum blossom and honeycomb design, and enters a chemical laboratory set up in a room with 20 windows, each framed in dragon tracery. And from the flagstones of the laboratory floor, often is scraped fungi and mould for use under the microscope.

These are typical contrasts of Ginling College, revealed through the survey of the Chinese field now being made by the Interchurch World Movement, which seeks to promote the closer co-operation of Protestant Churches of America in attaining their world aims.

Ginling College, the survey shows, is at the heart of five Chinese provinces, with a total population of 110,000,000—and is the only woman's college in that great area.

Ginling owns 37 acres of land on the hills beside the Yangtze river. In the Interchurch World Movement survey of China, there is a budget item of $500,000. It is there to show the churches of America how they can place upon that land on the hill the library, administration building, recreation buildings, chapel—all that are needed for a modern college.

Again has the angel of death taken from our midst a lovable soul! Mrs. Adelia A. Torrence who entered the beautiful gates of the beyond Sunday morning at 5 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Ware. Deceased was 87 years of age and had spent her life doing good to others and making her associates her friends by her kindly deeds and gentle words. Mrs. Torrence was stricken with pneumonia some weeks ago from which she never recovered. The remains were interred at Good Springs Monday where tender words of love and sympathy were said as the lovable body was lowered to its last resting place.

Oh dark the day and sharp the dread,
And swiftly fall the tears we shed;
Yet out of skies serenely wide
The sun shall shine on me and you.
And we shall tread, when ours is o'er
The happy, laughing ways once more."

Obituary

In loving memory of Mrs. Emmy Largent Springer who was born January 5th, 1892, was married to Mr. Will Springer December, 16 1914. Departed this life February 20th 1920 with measles and pneumonia.

She leaves a husband, one child, a mother, one sister one brother and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn her death, but we can rest assured that her sufferings are all over and she is now occupying the mansion that Jesus had prepared for her. She united with the Presbyterian church while a child, her Christian life for good will be a comfort to her loved ones and a blessing to others.

Weep not dear bereaved ones for God has dealt this blow in love and Emmy is safe in heaven awaiting your coming. Oh, God! how mysterious is thy way to take her in the best of her days.

Solely we do not think of the dear face which we last saw her as she lay still in death but of her pure spirit which waits to welcome us home.

There is one less on earth to love but there is one more precious soul in heaven.

Dearest friend thou hast left us;
Here thy loss we deeply feel,
But 'tis God who hath bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal
ONE WHO LOVED HER.

Mrs. Bitha Adina Henley

Mrs. Bitha Adina Henley, daughter of Thomas and Dolly Doyle, was born in Fayette County Feb. 18, 1855. She grew up with a sunny spirit and bore the brilliancy which alone is found with those of the heavenly family. Early in life Miss Bithy gave her life to God and lived a loyal and consistent soldier until her death on Dec. 25, 1919.

On Nov. 25, 1873 Miss Bithy became the wife of the late J. H. Henley with whom she lived a devoted companion until his death March 22, 1919.

To them were born seven children, two boys and five girls. The children are as follows: Newsom Henley of Laconia, John Wesley Henley deceased, Mrs. Nora McSwiney, and Mrs. A. L. Seals of Nashville, Mrs. G. N. Nash of Leconia, Mrs. J. G. Brinkley of Memphis and Mrs. Robert Richards of Whiteville.

The flowers of spring, the breeze of the morn, the sunbeams of beauty and the music of the harp spring forth into being, spend their force to sweeten the world, and fade away. But their impressions upon the heart are borne in the years that come and go. So with this faithful soul. Mrs. Henley came as it seems as a treasure from heaven to spend a few fleeting years in making the world a better place. Certain it is that no mission was better filled than hers. To the stalwart and brave she was courteous to the frail and weak she was helpful, to the timid and shrinking she was encouraging, and to the rare of man she was a friend.

Old Pleasant Hill church witnessed her presence at service as long as she was able to attend. She became a member there at a very early age, and remained until death. No doubt her loyalty to God has been the means of encouraging many a wayward pastor to put forth greater efforts. I have seen her in the declining days of her life look wishfully toward the church where she was unable to attend.

I have had her presence a few times in service and each service was made sweeter by the same. She lived and died, as it behooves us all, with the hallowed benedictions of heaven upon the soul. A little heap of earth in the old church yard marks the final resting place, and a wake of righteousness remains for those behind. She sleeps, but the voice of Christ shall call her forth in the resurrection morning when the spiritual body, clothed with immortality, sweeps within eternity's boundless joys.

Why Colds Are Dangerous

You are often told to "beware of a cold," but why? We will tell you: Every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious disease. People who contract pneumonia first take cold. The longer a cold hangs on, the greater the danger, especially from the germ disease as a cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs of consumption, diphtheria, scarlet fever and whooping cough. The quicker you get rid of your cold, the less the danger of contracting one of these diseases. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a great reputation as a cure for colds and can be depended upon. It is pleasant to take. Adv

Dog Tax Law Constitutional

The following letter is self explanatory:

Selmer, Tenn., February, 4, 1920.
J. J. Siler, Tax assessor,
Toone, Tenn.

Dear Sir:—Answering your inquiry of recent date with reference to the enforcement of the dog tax law, being Chapter 61. Act of 1919, I will state that in a letter just received from the Attorney General of the State, the Act is constitutional and should be enforced. No action has here before been taken, because the Act was being assailed in the courts as I understood. If any owner, or harborer or keeper of any dog in your county fails to pay the tax in 30 days after demand is made by you, you will institute the prosecutions for any such violations when court is not in session. The Attorney General will look after such prosecutions when court is in session, as provided in Section 5 of the Act referred to.

You may publish this letter as a means of giving publicity to the matter, if you so desire.

With kindest regards, I am very truly,
W. K. Abernathy.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS ASKED TO MEETING

Secretary of Navy Likely to Open Big Conference at Nashville

Nashville, Tenn.—(Special).—In an effort to have the great Southern Christianity Citizenship Conference opened with an address by the Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, on the subject, "Christian Ideals in Official Life," Gov. A. H. Roberts has written the Secretary, asking that he come to Tennessee during the week of March 7-12.

The governor's letter to Secretary Daniels follows:

"Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, Washington, D. C.:

"My Dear Mr. Secretary—The Southern Christian Citizenship Conference will be held in Nashville on March 7-12, and it is very much desired that you deliver the chief address at the opening of the meeting on the theme, "Christian Ideals in Official Life."

"I am advised from the headquarters that other citizens will communicate with you on the same subject, and I am merely writing to urge you to come to Tennessee if you can possibly do so on the date above named. The people of this State are very proud of your stand on moral issues and will appreciate your coming very much, indeed.

"Trusting that I may have a favorable reply, I am,

"Cordially yours,
A. H. ROBERTS, Governor."

Perhaps no official in the public eye today has so exemplified the Christian ideals in his public and private life as has Secretary Daniels and should he accept the invitation, he will prove a big drawing card to the great conference on Christian citizenship.

Millions Need Pepto-Mangan

In Many Homes Better Health
Is Simply a Matter of Better Blood

Pepto-Mangan Improves Blood

Composed of Approved Blood-Making Elements—Put Up In Liquid and Tablet Form

Are you tired and weak and "blue?" Do you say to yourself, "what's the use of living? What do I get out of life, dragging through this drab existence in this unhappy way?"

You don't feel well and you don't know why you have so little energy to do anything, and you get all tired out before it is done. There are millions in busy America that have such feelings now and then, and they are to be pitied. But there is help. Unless some serious malady is at the bottom of their trouble, a few weeks of Pepto-Mangan will work a wonderful change. Pepto-Mangan puts new vigor in the blood, and the blood is the life fluid. With plenty of rich, red blood coursing through one's body one is pretty likely to feel good and vigorous and be strong and look hearty.

Go to your druggist and ask for "Gude's Pepto-Mangan." Be sure to get "Gude's." If "Gude's" is not in the package it is not Pepto-Mangan. It is put up in both liquid and tablet form. Tell the druggist which you prefer. There is no difference in medicinal value. Advertisement.
